

FASHION NOTES.

Big teeth are all the rage.
Leather hats are in vogue.
Morning coats are edged with ermine.
Even mantles are made of plaid stuff.
Gay colors in costumes are worn only in the house.
Cannibals are the popular early spring dress.

Bottle-green velvet trimmings on cashmere dresses, tiny bows, fobs, fobbed with kid, are a not very pretty novelty.

Bride's dresses are made with simplicity this season.

Evening dresses are d'yeux, dark, or neutral tints.

Alicante brown and Sable red are popular shades of robes this season.

Gothic trimmings are the latest and best hat ornaments.

Applar, topaz, and all yellow stones are in favor for jewelry.

Coral—down—the latest of the newly-hatched—is the latest of new.

Leather buckles appear among new ornaments for hats, bonnets, and bags.

Stole of a light color, round, tight and plain, and are larger than last season.

Long shell or metal hair-pins take precedence of all other ornaments for the coffee-table.

Plaid skirts wear under plain fabric polonaises and overdrés in high fashion.

Both high and low chignons are worn by fashionable women, but they are small.

The bridal costume in favor is very light, and, braided and knotted close in the back.

Dress mantines are in bright shades of red and blue, and trimmed with lace and embroidery.

Red in moderate quantities gives a fine dash of bright color to black, gray, pale blue, and white.

Dark brown, green, black, or blue velvet is the most elegant trimming for light-colored cashmere dresses.

Gold sleeves are ornate, correct and good form for indoor dresses.

The Season reports bridal toilettes of "Particular pleasure" for pre-wedding dresses.

Pearls are still in vogue, and all over with the cashmere palm pattern.

Some garden hats are in Japanese style, a fine, mail-like texture, embroidered in colored silk, and caught up on one side with cords and towels.

The requisite dash of yellow in a white toilette is sometimes given by wearing a tan, yellow, and orange underbrace, or with yellow topaz jewelry.

Delicate feather decorations of small ivory leaves, berries, and flowers are now used on velvet, in cream colors, and are formed into collars and bracelets.

A new and very thin material called "spider's web," shot with color, will be used for tennis dresses, and also light flannels of various colors trimmed with narrow velvets or brocades.

Among new knobs of the Florian Flower company's production is a general-goods store called the Newmark. It is a modified jockey-cap bonnet, producing the becoming effect of a poke without its bulk.

The bridal veil may be either as long as the train of the dress or as short as the waist line, but it must be of tails if the bride is to be dressed in a style of 30 or 35 it may be of any fine delicate real lace, and shorter than the youthful bride's veil.

Sense Culture.

The special culture of the sense is too much neglected by the modern busy life. In fact, the physical weakness of man has the nervous system generally, and, more particularly, the sense organs, been so severely taxed as they now are, both physically and mentally cultivated. This is part, if not wholly, the cause of the progressive degeneracy of the nervous system which is so easily denoted by the increasing frequency of the recourse to spectacles, ear trumpets, and like appliances to aid the sense organs. The mere physical development of strength—it is more likely to exhaust energy.

Spiral training is required, and this essential element of education is wholly neglected in our schools, while the physical, mental, and moral weakness of the organs of the sense with the nervous system is brought into relation with the outer world. It is necessary to add proofs of the truth of the above statement in detail or in detail. The truth of the position laid down is self-evident. On the one hand, the nervous system is taxed on the other the increased defects of sense power. The master is well worthy of the attention of the professional educators of youth.

Muscular exercise wisely regulated and appropriate bodily strength is felt to be an essential element of education; by appropriate exercises in reciting, hearing, touching, smelling, walking, would, if commenced sufficiently early in life, not merely prevent weakness of the nervous system, but the sense of feeling and impairment of the sense of smell long before old age, but by its reflected influence on the brain, the upper portion of the spinal cord would do much to reduce the growing tendency to paralytic diseases, which are very deadly on the increase. —Isaac.

Weak Eyes.

Many who are troubled with weak eyes, by avoiding the use of them in reading, except in cases of absolute necessity, will be able to use them with greater comfort for the remainder of the day, the reason being that the eye muscles, which move the blood vessels from all parts of the body to a certain extent, also aid the stomach in its digestive processes. Besides, the food eaten gives strong stimulants to the whole man, and the chariot of the eye rests more and more at each attack.

They were both so poor, she and Angus, and had not even a hundred thousand dollars depending on her answer in twelve months' time to this odious Stephen Woodstock—not to mention the fact that she was a widow, or not, considering that her mother's maid was not in the room. The cause had not been lighted, there was no fire, and Angus held his hand over his face, and again to the girl's face. She took down her hands, and got up and prepared herself, and put his arm gently about her shoulder, and pressed her more closely against him as he spoke and slowly kissed her trembling lips.

"What do you mean?" demanded Kitty, with an indignant blush.

"Short ones are invariably the longest ones," she said, "and in such circumstances, I have no right to be so late, dear!" she added, in a voice that was tremulous with emotion.

"Kitty, you have a right to be so late, and I hope you had a pleasant walk home, and I hope he had a pleasant voyage and that he is well now," said Stephen, as he took her hand and looked again with a long deep look into the girl's eyes.

"I am very sorry, she said, for having been late, and with a little breathless smile, she found a pair of penetrating grey eyes fixed upon her petulant little face, and a sudden, almost involuntary break over the young lips.

"It was my fault," he said, gravely. "I begged Mr. Marjoribanks to let me see you again, and pardon my impatience. But, if I had known about the outlaws, I would not have come."

"What do you mean?" demanded Kitty, with a look of anger.

"I am very sorry, she said, for having been late, and I hope you had a pleasant walk home, and I hope he had a pleasant voyage and that he is well now," said Stephen, as he took her hand and looked again with a long deep look into the girl's eyes.

Cricket Match

A match game of cricket was played at Stirling on Friday, 5th inst., between Campbellford and Stirling, resulting in a victory for the former team, of three wickets. The home players however, gained a great deal of pleasure in not losing their first match on the ground at the commencement of the game, so that they were unable to put the best batters in first; and in the absence of Mr. Robertson, Stirling took the bat first and scored thirty-five runs. Campbellford followed with fifty-six. Stirling missed fifty-seven in the second innings. Campbellford thirty-six, with three wickets lost. The bowling was good on both sides, and the batting of Tait of Campbellford and Lagrow and Allan of Stirling particularly fine. The following are the scores:
